Justice Dayton, in the Supreme Court

The merry fight went on and promised him and Andrews, as a committee, to vote the 1.714 shares or stock held by Mrs. Andrews in the Elkhorn Valley Coal Land Company, and that if either of them should, by reason of the shares, be elected president or vice-president of the company the one so elected should draw the salary of the office.

Justice Dayton, commenting upon this phase, and after giving his opinion that the present appeal was but an evidence of a true only, said, in effect that the salary obtained with the shares of Mrs. Andrews was to be spockered by one or the other without any profit in any respect going to the estate of Mrs. Andrews, Justice Dayton thereupon refused to dismiss the litigation. Instead he signed an order discharging Roussyste and Andrews accommittee. He appointed Sylvester J. O Sillivan in these streets.
